Dear Current and Prospective Public Health Majors:

PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE READ THIS ENTIRE EMAIL!!!

We realize that this is a long email, but it is extremely important. It contains instructions that are critical to registering for Spring 2022 FMPH classes.

Second Registration for Spring 2022 FMPH classes begins on Monday, February 21st. Due to high demand for our courses, we have reserved a number of seats in our Spring 2022 classes to help ensure that students graduate on time. This means that if you want to take one or more FMPH courses in Spring 2022, you will need to follow the instructions listed below.

It is VERY IMPORTANT that you check your VAC and UCSD email regularly. The department will be sending out time-sensitive updates. If you miss these updates, you may end up not getting seats in classes you need.

INSTRUCTIONS
Please check out our Advising Calendar for up-to-date advising availability. We update this calendar daily so it is important to check the calendar often. If you are unable to come in during drop-in advising hours, please send any questions you have through the VAC. As a reminder, queries received via phone or email will not receive a response.

NOTE REGARDING ALL FMPH COURSES:
If you are interested in enrolling in a FMPH course that is full during your first registration, you should waitlist at the very beginning of second registration. The waitlist will be prioritized, and an internal waitlist will be kept by the department. All remaining seats will be filled using the internal waitlist, so please make sure to waitlist at the very beginning of second registration and wait for our VAC message before switching your schedule. We will message all waitlisted students in the VAC to let them know if we have seats for them or if we have placed them on our internal waitlist for the course within 2 weeks after second registration has started.

The department is excited to offer a small FMPH 191 special topics class this quarter with Dr. Harrell, FMPH 191 “Racism as a Public Health Crisis”. The broad topic of this course is the declaration by multiple municipalities around the country formally declaring racism as a public health crisis. The course will address questions such as: What is structural racism? What is public health? Why are there disparities in health outcomes between races? What are the moral questions raised by the effects of racism on health? What are the moral obligations of medical health and public health professionals? The goal of this course is two-fold: to introduce the main issues and to practice argumentative writing about the moral issues raised by these declarations.

NOTE: A minimum of one FMPH UDE is required for all Public Health majors.

FMPH 191 "Digital Consumer Health": (B00) TR 12:30-1:50pm with Dr. Elizabeth Eikey
- Prerequisites: FMPH 40, Department Approval to Enroll. Open to SO, JR, SR standing. All students must submit an Enrollment Authorization System (EASY) to enroll.

The department is excited to offer a small FMPH 191 special topics class this quarter with Dr. Eikey, FMPH 191 “Digital Consumer Health”. This course aims to empower students to build a lens to critically evaluate digital consumer technologies used in the context of health, such as self-tracking devices, telehealth, social media, and online communities, by exploring the contexts in which they are designed and used, including their social, cultural, and political underpinnings. While there is much potential for technologies to improve individuals' health and well-being as well as promote population health, technologies can also trigger or exacerbate harms. This course will help to balance positive views of digital health with critical analyses through the investigation of digital health's unintended consequences and the ways it can reinforce marginalization. Students will be encouraged to use systems-thinking and carefully consider context when assessing various digital tools. Thus, through this course, students will learn how to evaluate digital consumer tools that are and can be used by the public to promote health. This is important because consumer technologies are increasingly being used by Public Health professionals as interventions, for health promotion, to monitor and surveille health and disease, and more. Examples throughout the textbook will range across Public Health topics; however, activities will focus on one area, mental health, to build continuity across the course. This course is mostly in the US context but brings in ideas from other countries. NOTE: A minimum of one FMPH UDE is required for all Public Health majors.

This class is only for students currently enrolled in FMPH 193. All enrolled FMPH 193 students have been cleared for the same day/time section and instructor for FMPH 194 to enroll during 2nd Registration. As a reminder, the final exam will be on Saturday and is required for all students.
